Dear friends and colleagues,

many history of pharmacy activities, meetings, conferences etc. scheduled for 2020 had to be postponed or even cancelled due to the Corona crisis. However, we learned to successfully use online media, mainly video conferencing systems. As we will not be able to meet for the next International Congress for the History of Pharmacy” in Milan, initially scheduled for September 2021, the ISHP committee is intending to organise a virtual conference Friday, April 23 und Saturday, April 24, 2021 instead. According to our statutes, we will need to have our regular committee meetings there as well (see other mail to some of you).

The scientific program is primarily intended for young researches presenting their projects but will also comprise some highlight presentations given by experts. So I am asking all those involved in science to think about possible presenters and topics and encourage them to participate. Maybe, holiday season might provide some opportunity to think about that. I will come back to you early January asking for final proposals.

I am sure that we will be able to provoke significant interest from all over the world.

I am sending best wishes for Christmas and new year, may things become much easier than in 2020.

Axel Helmstädter
